“Warstory – Europe in Flames” has now officially gone into Open Beta in Thailand with full local language support!

Munich, Germany – 13th October 2011 – Warstory – Europe in Flames is a free-to-play, massively multiplayer online strategy game set during World War II. The browsergame is now available in Thai for its deployment into Thailand. This was made possible through the joint venture of publisher Bigpoint, local partner Ini3, label GamesInFlames and developer Chimera Entertainment.

The closed beta started at the end of September and the game is now open to the public. “We are proud to be able to deliver the thrilling and fun to play action of ‘WARSTORY – Europe in Flames’ to all gamers in Thailand!” says Hendrik Lesser, Managing Director of GamesInFlames.

In “Warstory – Europe in Flames” you fight strategic real time battles all over Europe in a race to be the first to free Berlin with your faction. On the way to your goal you unlock new units, upgrade your forces and build up your officers to mighty leaders. These officers carry powerful special abilities like Blitzkrieg or Airstrike, which you’re using to defeat clever AI opponents. All is overseen by your Commander, who gains hard fought achievements within the wars (seasons) and whom you build up to a virtual legend. Choose between the Western Alliance (US and UK forces) and the Soviet Union, join the fight now and be the first to liberate Europe!

Available in English, German, Russian and Thai, “Warstory – Europe in Flames” has seen sixteen seasons and more than a million battles since launch and players have spent hundreds of millions of ammunitions, oil and rations in their race to be the first to reach Berlin.
